Q1.	Many individuals claim to have a growth mindset, yet their behaviours reveal fixed beliefs. Critically examine this paradox using real-life or personal examples. How can awareness of such contradictions become the first step toward authentic growth?	10 marks (CO1, CO2)
Q2	Evaluate the role of failure in long-term personal transformation. How might consciously reinterpreting setbacks reshape one's identity and sense of purpose? Support your argument with examples.	10 marks (CO1, CO2)
Q3	Emotions are often viewed as irrational, yet they deeply inform decision-making. Examine how emotional awareness can serve as a strategic advantage in leadership. Propose ways to transform negative emotions into sources of insight and influence.	10 marks (CO3)
Q4	Write an essay on the topic: " Why failures and obstacles are the stepping stones to success. " Include insights from the concepts of growth mindset, passion and purpose, and leading personal change.	10 marks (CO3)
