great pride." JKLU Vice Chancellor Professor Vijaysekhar Chellaboina presented the annual report, featuring the university's academic progress and achievements over the past year. Wishing the students success, Dr. Vijaysekhar Chellaboina said, "As you move ahead, remember that your personal and professional lives are not separate journeys. A meaningful professional life forms the foundation of a stable personal life. The world of work is changing at a breathtaking pace. Today AI is redefining skills, tomorrow something else will. One thing is certain: what you learn in university is your starting point, not your entire toolkit. You will have to learn, unlearn and relearn throughout your life. University education gives you fundamentals and practical exposure, but your true education begins when you leave the campus."

He further added, "Over the years, I have realized something simple yet powerful: skills fade, talent evolves, but character endures. And if I could leave you with three qualities that will carry you through every challenge, they would be, sensitivity, to understand situations and people deeply; humility, to stay grounded no matter how high you rise; and curiosity, the spark that keeps you alive, relevant and growing."
